

Week 6 Overview:

Welcome back from vacation! This week we will start a new assessment: writing personal narratives.

We will be building off what Tim O'Brien taught us about truth and storytelling. This is your opportunity to write something about your own life and to apply the ideas of "story truth" and "intended meaning."

This week, the goal is to generate some ideas and create an outline (Next week, you will finish your writing, and then the assessment will be due the following Monday, May 11th at 8 am)

The daily tasks are as follows:

Task 1: Review the assessment and complete the story truth comic strip

Task 2: Submit two potential ideas

- Complete the outline to submit at least 2 ideas for your narrative
- If you complete this on Tuesday, your assessor will be able to give you some feedback by Thursday

Task 3: Outline your narrative

- Using the process and (optional) template provided, outline your narrative.

** Note: That there are only 3 tasks this week, since Friday will be reserved for spring PLP conferences
